Q. What is a Psychologist?

A. Psychologist studies normal and abnormal mental states, perceptual, cognitive, emotional, and social processes, and behavior by experimenting with, and observing, interpreting, and recording how individuals relate to one another and to their environments. Psychologists usually acquire a four year university degree, often with post-graduate work required.

To become a clinical psychologist, you will need an undergraduate degree (four to five years of college) plus a doctorate degree (four to seven years of graduate school). For this specialty area, most people will spend between eight to 12 years in higher education.
